

Invitation of nomination for the Stockholm Water Prize 2012

Swedish International Water Institute (SIWI) has invited all concerned to nominate persons(s)/institutes for outstanding achievements in water related activities for world's most prestigious water related prize namely Stockholm Water Prize for the year 2012. Members of academia, science, government, civic organizations and NGOs can nominate individual(s) or institutes whose work merits recognition in the categories: outreach and awareness raising, policy and practices, and research. Nomination can be submitted online before 15 September 2011 at www.siwi.org/stockholmwaterprize/nominate.

Although many government and non-government organizations as well as researchers in Bangladesh have made huge contribution in improving water and sanitary situation, such formal recognition has never been received by any. Therefore, all concerned should put forward appropriate nomination of our individuals or institutions every year including the ongoing one for 2012 so that we can get the right share of honour that we deserve.

Like every year, SIWI is organizing World Water Week 2011 which is to start in Stockholm from 21 August 2011 for one week. The registration process to attend the programme is already on and one can register on line at www.worldwaterweek.org. Spot registration is also allowable.
